

Glenn Maguire, Chief Economist, Asia Pacific leads ANZ's Singapore based economics team covering South and South-East Asia as well as the Pacific Economies. Glenn is an important contributor to ANZ's pan-Asia research and engages regularly with clients, regulators and policy makers in the region. Glenn and his team strive to support ANZ's brand across Asia by providing commercial and market relevant economic research defined by its engagement, thought leadership and rigor. Glenn is a frequent commentator in the regional and international media and regular guest host of both television and radio news programmes. Glenn is authoring a major research paper for ANZ on the financial deepening required in the Asia region required if the promise of the Asian Century is to be fully realised.

Glenn has extensive Asian Economics and banking experience, having spent 16 years at Société Générale, most recently as Head of Asian Economic and Cross Asset Research based in Hong Kong. He has also been the Australian Chief Economist and Japan Chief Economist with Societe Generale. Prior to joining Société Générale in Australia, Glenn worked as an Economist in the Fiscal Policy Division of the Department of Prime Minister and Cabinet in Canberra, Australia. Glenn was a fiscal policy specialist, focussing on labour market efficiency programs and vertical fiscal distribution.
