

Amir Shafaie is the Legal Analyst at the Revenue Watch Institute (RWI) where he focuses on technical assistance and capacity building programs aimed at improving natural resource legal regimes, particularly in Africa and the Middle East. Amir has been involved in RWI's work on Liberia's new National Petroleum Policy and previously assisted the International Senior Lawyers Project (ISLP) in providing pro bono counsel to the Liberian government on a port concession. Prior to joining RWI, Amir was part of the Energy & Infrastructure team at Linklaters LLP's offices in London, New York and Dubai, where he represented clients on energy and infrastructure projects in the Middle East, Africa and Latin America.