

Victor Kitange is an Economist with over 15 years of experience in advising governments on economic policies and fiscal contractual matters relating to oil, gas and mining investment. He has worked as an Energy Economist for the Government of the United Republic of Tanzania, a Research Analyst on natural gas policy for the Government of Alberta, Canada, and an Economic Adviser on oil, gas, and mining fiscal policies reforms, contract negotiations, and fiscal modelling for the Commonwealth Secretariat in London. He is currently a Technical Assistance Advisor in the Fiscal Affairs Department of the International Monetary Fund, providing tax policy advice on oil, gas, and mining fiscal regime design and implementation.